The following letter from the city engineer is self-explanatory:

Owing to the unavoidable deinys already experienced in the preparations of plans for the Roaring brook and Linden street bridges and also taking into consideration the desire and anxiety of the discens in general to have the proposed bridges constructed at the earliest possible moment, I have to state that I have submitted to the changes suggested by Mr. Larus, the expert engineer appointed to examine and pass upon the plans for to examine and pass upon the plans for to examine and pass upon the plans to same.

There is no doubt in my mind of there being several unnecessary changes made in the plans which will increase to some extent the cost of the structures. The changes, to my mind, were unnecessary because the plans in their former condition were entirely adequate for the purposes for which they were intended. But as before stated, rather than risk further delay, all changes are submitted to.

Hellings, of Omaha, Neb., has, however, been induced to remain over another Sunday, and will attract large audiences at the Penn Avenue church next Sunday morning and evening.

To a Tribune reporter Rev. Warren G. Partridge spoke as follows concerning the recent centennial anniversary:

"I believe that the benefits of the Baptist anniversary just held in this city are beyond calculation. It is of inestimable value to study history, and church."

The work of the kindergarten was a great feature in the exhibition and amply recompensed for the annual outagree beyond calculation. It is of inestimable value to study history, and church. The little ones have improved especially the history of the nineteenth century. Biography is history, teaching, by example, and it is an inspiration for this generation to study the sturdy characters and achievements of such heroic men of the past as Rev. William Bishop and Elder Mott. Such a cele-bration also cultivates esprit de corps in a denomination. It gives breadth and comprehensiveness to the religious bodies; it is well to rise in thought and sympathy above the individual local church and contemplate the broad sweep of a denomination's life having work, and also that 1,256 women and a membership in the United States of children had been given a free outing
